PALAZZO DUCALE VENTURI

THE NOBLE HEART OF SALENTO

Tucked away in the Salento countryside, Palazzo Ducale Venturi is a 16th-century gem where history meets quiet luxury. Think vaulted ceilings, secret gardens, and even an ancient olive mill turned into a salt-water pool. Each suite feels unique, blending noble charm with modern comfort. But the real heartbeat of the Palazzo is its kitchen: food isn't just served, it's celebrated. From homemade breakfasts to dinners crafted from the freshest local ingredients, every plate tells a story of Salento. A stay here is less about passing through, and more about savoring - slowly, seriously, beautifully.

GALATINA: SECRETS OF STONE AND LIFE

Enjoy a journey through history, culture, and culinary delights in Galatina. Located in the hearth of Salento, just 20km from Lecce is an example of baroque with its buildings and great monuments, such as the Basilica di Santa Caterina d'Alessandria, Torre dell'Orologio and Palazzo Orsini. Besides its artistic architectural value, Galatina is renowned for the myth of Tarantismo. The term historically is used to refer to a dancing mania, which likely had little to do with spider bites. The tarantella dance supposedly evolved from this therapy. Also, don't forget to taste the famous Pasticciotto, paired by a glass of Apulian sweet wine – Passito.

OTRANTO: BETWEEN WALLS AND SEA

Step into Otranto, Salento's "gateway to the East," where the Adriatic sparkles against ancient fortress walls. Stroll through whitewashed streets, bustling piazzas, and sunlit harbors, feeling the town's lively yet relaxed rhythm. Inside the cathedral, a breathtaking medieval mosaic carpet sprawls across the floor, weaving stories of saints, legends, and local devotion. Beyond its art, the warmth of Otranto comes alive through its people: friendly staff in cafés, markets, and galleries eager to share their town's secrets. Every corner invites discovery, from seaside panoramas to hidden alleys, making Otranto a perfect blend of history, culture, and coastal charm.
